Gaggle.Net Honored with an EDDIE Award

BLOOMINGTON, IL – Gaggle.Net, the leading provider of safe student email to school districts across the country, is pleased to accept the 2007 EDDIE Award in the Middle School Category for Internet Skills.

This year Gaggle.Net was honored by the ComputED Gazette as a recipient of the 12th Annual Education Software Review Award (EDDIES)! The EDDIE Awards target innovative and content-rich programs and websites, which provide teachers with the technology to foster educational excellence--including enhancing the classroom curriculum and improving teacher productivity.

Gaggle.Net was selected as a winner based on its safe student communication tools designed specifically for schools. Gaggle's service includes safe student email, blogs, message boards, chat rooms, digital lockers, and web profile pages. This is the second year running that Gaggle has received an EDDIE Award and the company is proud to extend the tradition.

Michael Kessler, Gaggle's Vice President, was quoted saying, "We are thrilled to have won an EDDIE award for a second year in a row. It's exciting that more and more educators are seeing the benefits of safe online communication for students."

About Gaggle.Net
Founded in 1998, Gaggle.Net is in its ninth year of providing safe, teacher-controlled email to K-12 students across the country and worldwide. Currently, over 14,000 schools are signed up for Gaggle.Net's safe student email system. More then just email, Gaggle.Net has expanded to include student-focused blogs, chat rooms, message boards, digital lockers, and profile pages. All of these features are filtered for inappropriate content and images, and offer full monitoring capabilities to teachers. These tools are located on Gaggle.Net's web-based system so learning and communication can extend outside the classroom walls. Student's can access their Gaggle accounts from any Internet connected computer.
